

Patch Whiz Kid of the Week: Lilly Polavi

Local sixth grade student recognized for art work.

By Julianne Shipton | Email the author | February 16, 2011

Name: Lilly Polavi, Grade 6

School: Stuart R. Paddock School

Accomplishment: Polavi received a 2010 National Artistic Achievement Award.

Key to Awesomeness: Polavi is one of 50 students across the United States honored in five age categories by ArtStamps. She received the Runner Up award in the 10-12 year age category. ArtStamps is a fundraising company that turns student artwork into postage stamps and other products. For her achievement, she won a $50 cash prize, said ArtStamps spokesperson Jocelyn Murray. Polavi was selected based on the originality and creativity of her design. All students who participate in the company's fundraiser are eligible for the National Artistic Achievement Award (NAAA), and the winning designs are chosen from thousands of submissions, Murray said.

Congratulations for this achievement!